WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1904.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

3,225

Tinkle, tinkle, tinkle say the Bells.

Heartily congratulations to State's Attorney S. Hollister Jackson of Barre city.

Fusion refused to ignite in Washington county this year. The fuse was too wet.

The Republican vote yesterday was a state endorsement of the Roosevelt administration, as well as a splendid tribute to Charles J. Bell.

Through the vote yesterday Barre city will be represented in the Republican state convention by one more delegate and in the Republican county convention by two more delegates. And still the Republicans did not do what they might have done if they had tried.

The Times is not aware of the reasons the board of aldermen had for rejecting the name of James Adie as alderman from Ward 6, to succeed Mr. Duffy, but from an outside view it would seem that Mr. Adie is as well qualified to fill the position as those members of the board who turned him down.

We are rather pleased to learn that the plan for a series of three post-season games of baseball between Rutland and Burlington teams of the Northern league, to determine definitely "which is the superior team," has been abandoned. The series is not necessary for the purposes given. The superiority of the Rutland team over Burlington has been definitely and decisively settled during the regular schedule, the former defeating Burlington in six games out of the ten played.—Rutland News.

On the same line of reckoning the Barre-Montpelier team is superior to Rutland, as the latter took only four games out of ten from the Inter-City team.

BARRE CITY'S REPRESENTATIVE.

Barre city's next representative in the general assembly, Mr. Pape, went out in a hard fought battle over a worthy opponent, Burt H. Wells, and has reason for congratulating himself over it. The campaign was a close one throughout. Mr. Pape's experience in the legislature of 1902 gave him a certain prestige over his Republican opponent which undoubtedly aided in his election, for a record such as Mr. Pape made in that assembly could not fail to work to his advantage when he sought a re-election. He was watchful at all times for the interests of the city of Barre which he represented. By his marked ability he made himself a prominent figure in the legislature of 1902 and he will most certainly duplicate the work this fall. Barre's interests will be conserved by the man chosen to represent the city.

THE SWEEPING REPUBLICAN VICTORY.

There was no mistaking the note. Indeed, there was really no chance for mistaking it. So loud and so clear a cry as that of yesterday has scarcely ever been sent out over the country by the Republicans of Vermont. So large a plurality for the governorship has rarely been equalled in the old state and Charles J. Bell of Walden is ushered into office on the high tide of ballots. Since 1872 but one Republican candidate for governor has received a larger vote than did the Walden man have yesterday. The one exception was Josiah Grout, who, in 1896, was accorded a plurality of 30,930. And with the exception of Stickney's plurality four years ago none has ever approached Bell's handsome showing in yesterday's fight—a fight which was conducted in all cleanliness by the supporters of the successful candidate and which consequently makes the victory all the more gratifying to the Bell cohorts. A battle at the polls, conducted without slander and without calumny, is its own reward even if the candidate is not successful in receiving the election. Such a campaign was that of C. J. Bell and the Republican state committee. And the double reward was theirs.

To the farmers of Vermont must be ascribed the magnitude of the sweeping victory. The farmers came down from the hills—they came down in hordes and in swarms and they cast their ballots for the man of their own interests. Had they not responded to the call they probably would not have been given another opportunity so largely to their advantage. But they did rise to their opportunity and by their efforts rolled up one of the largest Republican votes ever registered in Vermont. The cities and large towns were largely in favor of Bell but without the aid of the farmers the plurality would have sunk to a low level, for the reason that the voters did not come out in the cities and larger towns. To cope with this storm of ballots the Democrats were powerless. They were met, overwhelmed and fairly buried in ballots. Defeat was expected by them but burial alive was not considered. In fact, the minority party of Vermont had exerted strenuous efforts to cut down the size of the Republican plurality and there were very many who expected to see that accomplished this year.

Here's an opening for every man in Barre. Here's the real genuine stuff—everything in the line of Clothing for men and boys. The characteristics of the new styles are: Coats, longer and looser. This gives size to a man if the coat is cut by an expert, but if by an ordinary tailor the result is slouchiness. The Vest opens deeper, giving a chance for Scarfs to assert themselves. Trousers are medium for conventional men and full for extremists.

This attempt to cut down the Republican preponderance, made largely for its effect on the national election next November, resulted adversely and, it may be said, inversely. If the national Democratic committee had made no effort to work up a Democratic sentiment in Vermont, the Republican plurality would have been cut down and the ends of the party gained without the expenditure of energy. The Republicans of the state were indifferent, careless and apathetic. The efforts of the Democrats stirred them from their lethargy as no spell-binders could have done and as no spell-binders did. They roused from the semi-comatose state into which they had sunk through their very satisfaction, long enough to quell the "un-terrified" with one vast avalanche of ballots—the exposition of a power which is theirs to exert if they care to. Thus the Democratic party unwittingly defeated itself in its endeavor to reduce the Republican plurality, and the campaign of 1904 will be recorded as simply another Republican landslide.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy C. H. Darling arrived in Bennington Saturday afternoon for the purpose of being present at the election today.

The Rev. Gibbs Brailin resumed his duties at the Rutland Baptist church Sunday. During his absence the Rev. Mr. Brailin passed two months abroad in visiting the principal cities of Ireland, Scotland, Germany, France, and Switzerland.

The trustees of the village of Proctor will make application to the next general assembly to amend the charter of the village to enable the village to take and hold by purchase or otherwise, water or water courses in the town of Chittenden, to license and regulate peddlers; also to amend the procedure in the case of taking adversely any water or water sources and the laying of any sewers or sidewalks.

W. E. Haskell and J. W. Cobb of Brattleboro had a narrow escape from death or serious injury in an automobile accident Sunday afternoon. They were out in Mr. Haskell's big touring car and were on their way to Bernardston, Mass. Near the point known as Keith's mills they went over an embankment ten feet high into a brook. At the time they were speeding at about thirty miles an hour. The machine turned over as it fell, the two men being underneath. Just how they ever got out with only a few bruises is a mystery. The back of the seat and part of the top helped hold the heavy machine from crushing them. It was gotten to the road with a pair of horses and the aid of its own engine which ran all the time during the accident.

RACING FOR MUKDEN COAL

Field Marshal Oyama Trying to Head Off General Kuropatkin.

YENTAI OCCUPIED BY KUROKI

Russian Wagon Trains Are Heading For Harbin.

Japanese Hanging on to Their Enemy's Flanks—A Russian Correspondent's Graphic Picture of the Flight From Liaoyang—Retreating Column Fifteen Miles Wide.

Fighting a continuous rear guard action with the Japanese who hang to his flanks, Kuropatkin continues to fall back over roads made sodden by two days' heavy rain. The heads of his long commissary trains have passed through Mukden and continue northward. It is reported that in spite of the bad roads and persistent attacks on the Russian rear the retreat is orderly. Details of the fighting and the exact position of the opposing armies are lacking. The Russian general staff, while admitting it has received no official advices since last evening, denies the report that Kuropatkin's rear guard has been annihilated. From Tokyo comes the official report that the bulk of the Russian forces is still at Yentai. Whether or not Kuropatkin will make another stand at Mukden is not indicated in today's advices. In St. Petersburg it is argued that the fact that his commissary trains passed on through Mukden does not indicate that the Russian commander proposes to evacuate the city without a struggle, but only that they are taking up their proper position in the rear.

STOLE LABOR DAY RECEIPTS.

Masked Bandits Break Into Pennsylvania Trolley Car Barn.

Lansdale, Pa., Sept. 7.—Six masked robbers visited the Lehigh Valley Traction company's car barn at Souderton, a few miles above here, and after beating and gagging four employees blew open a safe and escaped with between $700 and $800, the Labor day receipts of the company.

The men were all armed, and when the employees of the company attempted to resist they were assaulted with blackjacks and then bound and gagged.

There were two safes in the office, but only one of them was broken open. The burglars had made preparations to crack the other safe, but the alarm in the office sounded, and they were frightened off. They had stolen a wagon, in which they made their escape. The men were last seen fleeing down the turnpike. Residents of Souderton procured guns and gave chase to the thieves in an automobile, but without success.

Connecticut's Shore Mystery.
New Haven, Conn., Sept. 7.—Coroner Mix continued his investigation into the death of Miss Louise DuBois of Yalesville, whose body was found on the beach near Woodmont last week. Ernest La Pointe of Wallingford, the girl's sweetheart, promised to appear before Coroner Mix, but he failed to keep his engagement. It is understood that he is now in Hampton, N. J., and Detectives Daley and McGrath have gone to that place to question the young man in regard to the case.

The Fiddles in the Fall.
Summer time is o'er—
Hear the partridge call!
An' all the time I'm thinkin'
Of the fiddles in the fall.
I'm fiddlin' in the furrow
An' sturin' in the hall;
The very wind is singin'
Like the fiddles in the fall!
Oh, happy time a-comin'—
You jest me up for all!
Throw wide the cattin' windows
To the fiddles in the fall!
